

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0083]The present invention discloses a color-correction method and apparatus for a liquid crystal display that effectively corrects a color balance. In the method and apparatus, input data are modulated to allow a high-speed driving. Also, a voltage level of the input data is reduced based on a modulated amount of the changed data when voltage level of the current frame is equal to that of the previous frame.